Zavjalova Captures Pepsi PWBA St. Petersburg-Clearwater Open Title

Diana Zavjalova

SEMINOLE, Fla. – A high-scoring week at Seminole Lanes became a much more difficult test in the stepladder finals of the Pepsi PWBA St. Petersburg-Clearwater Open on Saturday.

But No. 5 seed Diana Zavjalova of Latvia was able to fight through to win her opening match, then climbed the stepladder to capture her third PWBA title with a 201-158 victory over top-seed Daria Pajak of Poland.

The finals of the Pepsi PWBA St. Petersburg-Clearwater Open, which had five bowlers who are all in their 20s, were televised live on CBS Sports Network.

Zavjalova, who celebrated her 27th birthday on Wednesday, admitted that after a high-scoring week, she didn't know what to expect with the finals on a pair of lanes not used during the week.

"I was nervous," Zavjalova said. "I didn't throw it well in the first game. Once I got through the first game, I got more comfortable, kept moving left and the other girls were struggling. I just kept moving left and just got more comfortable as the games went on."

An early double in the title match helped Zavjalova to an 18-pin lead after six frames, and when Pajak, 25, missed a 10-pin spare attempt for the second time in the match, Zavjalova simply continued to make her spares.

"I did not see the right shape, and when I threw it good, I didn't carry," Pajak said. "I tried to make adjustments, and that's when I threw bad shots. And you cannot win when you miss two spares."

In the semifinal match against Liz Kuhlkin, 24, of Schenectady, New York, Zavjalova was in a groove, striking on six of her first seven shots. Kuhlkin, who ran the stepladder to win the U.S. Women's Open in June, managed only two strikes and suffered her first loss in a stepladder finals,

2018 Senior Championships Crowns 12 Winners in Reno

RENO, Nev. – The 2018 United States Bowling Congress Senior Championships concluded Friday at the National Bowling Stadium, recognizing 12 champions from 11 states.

Nearly 400 bowlers from across the United States and Canada laced up at the 78-lane venue and competed in one of two divisions – Open and Women's – and six age classifications (50-54, 55-59, 60-64, 65-69, 70-74, 75 and above).

Competitors bowled a pair of three-game qualifying blocks over two days to determine the six players in each division advancing to Friday's medal round. The six qualifiers from each division were determined by total pinfall, including handicap.

Pinfall was dropped for the medal round, but bowlers were awarded bonus pins based on their qualifying position (50 bonus pins for first, 40 pins for second, etc.).

In the Women's Division, three of the top qualifiers went onto capture titles in the respective age classifications.

Eileen Windler of Fowler, Indiana, cruised to the top spot in the 75 and above category with a 726 total, while Kim Hasser of Oxford, Indiana, and Josephine Morris of Thedford, Nebraska, took advantage of their bonus pins to squeak out victories in 55-59 and 70-74, respectively.

Hasser and Trudy Quint of Winnipeg, Manitoba, posted the same total series, including handicap (692), but Hasser's

Norm Duke Closes the Deal to Win PBA50 Security Federal Savings Bank Championship

KOKOMO, Ind. (July 31, 2018) – After two tough losses in PBA50 Tour majors earlier in the season, PBA Hall of Famer Norm Duke of Clermont, Fla., was starting to question his ability to close the deal.

He regained his confidence Tuesday by defeating five-time PBA Tour winner and stepladder finals top qualifier Ryan Shafer of Horseheads, N.Y., 236-222, in the title match to win the PBA50 Security Federal Savings Bank Championship presented by Track at Dave Small's Heritage Lanes for his first win of the season.

"I'm just elated to get the monkey off my back," said the 54-year-old Duke, who finished second in the PBA50 National Championship and USBC Senior Masters. "In my opinion a second-place finish is one of the worst places you can finish."

In the title match, Duke got off to a strong start with four strikes in a row and took advantage of an open frame by Shafer in the third frame when

United States, Qatar Win Team Gold at 2018 World Youth Championships

Caitlyn Johnson, Mabel Cummins, Taylor Bailey, Breanna Clemmer

ALLEN PARK, Mich. - For the first time since 2012, the Junior Team USA girls claimed the coveted team gold medal at the World Bowling Youth Championships, while the boys from Qatar returned to the top of the medal stand as a team for the first time in three decades.

The girls team final Thursday at Thunderbowl Lanes was a rematch of the 2016 title tilt between Korea and the United States, and it gave Junior Team USA a chance at redemption on its home turf.

The opportunity was not wasted, as the Junior Team USA girls battled back from an opening-game loss and won the match, 2-1, by scores of 180-205, 214-181 and 230-175 in the

Just Paying Attention

By Mark London
Mark@TheBowlingNews.net

As we start the fifth annual JPA Troy Walker Media columns, the first piece is about an item from last week. In mentioning whether Fox Sports may revisit talking to athletes during competition last week as they did for the recent MLB ALL Star Game, I was gently reminded the PBA did it first, roughly ten years ago, something I had forgotten I mentioned this time last year.

In a message from Da Commish, PBA Commissioner Tom Clark, he reminded me the Association did just that with Jason Belmonte and Chris Barnes.

Then the visual clicked. Belmo would put his foot up on the ball return tray as he always does, make a little adjustment to the ear piece, then listen to a question from color analyst Randy Pedersen about what strategy was next in line. He would calmly answer the question and then throw the shot.

According to Clark, 2018 PBA Hall of Fame inductee Barnes gave perhaps the most comical response. I'm paraphrasing here, Barnes said something to the effect of liking it better than not wearing the earpiece because he had another voice talking to him in his head rather than his own. .

Although Clark has not been approached by Fox Sports as of yet, maybe it is time to revisit this next step in television sports coverage. The PBA could be a pioneer once again. It already has the two-images-in-one reaction shot (the Don Johnson 299 final ball the most famous example).

Why the media columns? Does bowling actually have a presence that way? Why should we care? That final ball in a qualifying game at The Luci only five years ago on what should have been the final strike of a 300 game began this journey. The sweep was triggered to sweep off pins from Lane 8 instead was triggered on Lane 7, Troy Walker's lane. As fate would have it, the sweep fell at the worst and last possible moment, stopping the ball from entering the pin deck. Walker was of course, allowed to re-bowl the shot, but left the 3-6-10 combination on his attempt for a 297 game.

Mike Flanagan's InsideBowling.com had the live stream coverage that year, as the event was not yet an official PBA national tour event. He uploaded the clip to YouTube from the fateful ball at Palace Lanes under 'Horrific Bowling Accident'.

What happened in the next several days was truly hard to believe. It went viral, really viral, as much as any bowling video had before or since. There were two million views within the first few days. It was seen on at least one nightly network newscast, numerous cable and local news outlets. Even David Letterman aired it twice in Marv Albert's 'Wild and Wacky' monthly sports video segment on his late night talk show. One downside was the strange calls Donna Conners received from the zany morning radio shows asking a plethora of odd questions, few if any, related to The Luci tournament itself.

It had been wondered for a while how bowling could make an online splash. Well, that certainly did, but not the way this scenario unfolded. What's unique about social media is it's like the explosion of a super nova star. Big explosion, bright light, then as quickly as it happens, it's gone, and our attention moves on to the next bright light.

I've looked as the video still hasn't reached three million hits or views yet. Considering it took only three days to reach the two million mark, who knows how much time it may take to get to three million.

The latest white-hot viral video that seems to have cooled a bit, is James Cordin's carpool karaoke with former Beatle Sir Paul McCartney. In a segment from his CBS late night talk show. Cordin gets very recognizable celebrities to jump into a minivan and sing along with him around as he drives around town. McCartney was Cordin's guest as he did a week of shows from London. That 20-plus minute clip has been viewed over 28 million times since its release almost a month ago. Anyone know if Paul or Ringo bowl?

As FloBowling begins its presentation of the Association, the next step of how bowling is shown is changing. With more detailed graphics, timely features, and a different flow of the rhythm of how it's presented will also change how we watch. At times in the not-to-distant future, we may wonder how we got by before. The hope is that more fans will watch, or better yet, will want to watch. That's why many in the industry are waiting to see how Fox Sports changes the television look of the PBA in the coming months. I'll highlight what they are doing with on-air content next week.

How programming is shown changes with time. As I've illustrated before, how sports and just about everything else on TV is presented changes with technology and the tastes of the day. It's adopt, sign off, or get sold and rebranded Different networks and channels start and end as well. One network many of my age group thought was dead is experiencing a comeback. It's a network that's still on, but looks nothing like it did when it launched thirty-seven years ago last week.

Early on a Saturday morning, a channel called MTV, or Music Television, signed on playing music videos and interviews with musicians and entertainers around the clock.

Viewership in the 12 – 24 age group was massive, a gold mine for advertisers, wanting to get their message to brand new consumers. Ratings were solid for the first few years, then waned, until a new type of program was developed in the late 80's, the reality show. Ratings rose again, and the decision was made to stick with gearing programming to the high school to college age group. Right now, MTV is experiencing somewhat of a rediscovery. Current management is going back to its reality show roots, going back to the first generation of reality shows.

FloBowling has already started to show signs they mean business with its on-air content. They've started to feature various video pieces, similar to what you already see on what I call the big six specialty sports networks (MLB Network, NFL Network, NBA TV, and NHL Network, Tennis Channel, Golf Channel). I'll go into detail about that and how their physical setup differed from what I was part of at last year's Luci next week. Stay tuned.

bonus pins ended up giving her the overall win, 742-732. Quint qualified in second place in 55-59.

Morris posted the third-highest series (685) in 70-74, but her bonus pins let her edge Phyllis Franklin of Paducah, Kentucky, 735-731, to claim the title.

Three lower seeds won in the other age classifications. Angie Decker of Louisville, Kentucky (782), and Anita Ruder of Hays, Kansas (723), each qualified third to win in 50-54 and 60-64, respectively.

Charlotte Winklepleck of Strasburg, Colorado, made the biggest jump in the women's division, racing from fourth place in qualifying to the top spot in the 65-69 classification with a 750 total.

In the Open Division, Terry Lindner of Ringtown, Pennsylvania, made the largest comeback after qualifying in fifth place in the 65-69 group.

Lindner rolled a 736 total Friday, which was enough to hold off top qualifier Bobby Goss of Carrollton, Mississippi, who finished in second with 727.

Four of the six top qualifiers went on to capture titles in the Open Division.

Max Honke of Salem, South Dakota, posted the highest

PBA50 PLAYERS IN HAMMOND TEACH A LESSON ABOUT THE VALUE OF A PIN

There's a school of thought in bowling that you should never throw away a pin, and if you need an object lesson, consider what happened during the PBA50 South Shore Open at Olympic Lanes in Hammond, Ind., last week.

-The first cut after 16 games of qualifying saw Ernie Segura Jr. survive with a 3,475 total, one pin ahead of PBA Hall of Famer Parker Bohn III and Rick Zakrajsek, who went home with 3,474 pins.

-In the five-game cashers round, PBA Hall of Famer Tom Baker and fellow PBA50 competitor Leroy Johnson tied for seventh place, advancing to modified match play with 1,086 totals – one pin ahead of Dale Traber.

-In the first five-game modified match play elimination round, Tom Baker again slipped through, qualifying eighth with a 1,131 total – one pin ahead of Leroy Johnson, who went home.

Thus in three consecutive rounds, players saw their chance to remain in the title hunt disappear by a single pin. It happens more often than you might think. Remember the old adage: when in doubt, go for count…

"BEASTS" WIN "LUCI MIXED DOUBLES" SPECIAL EVENT

The team of five leading male qualifiers from the 2017 Striking Against Breast Cancer Mixed Doubles tournament – affectionately called "The Luci" in honor of the late Luci Bonneau, a breast cancer victim who inspired the creation of the event – won a new special event kicking off the 2018 event, edging an all-female team in a one-game roll-off.

"The Beauties vs. The Beasts" competition began as a five-game Baker format contest pitting Birgit Poppler, Stefanie Johnson, Holly Harris, Josie Earnest-Barnes and Natalie Cortese against Chris Barnes, Brad Miller, Kyle Troup, Clint Land and Tommy Jones. The "Beasts" won the first two games, 198-188 and 190-181, and game four, 216-192. But the "Beauties," with 223-199 and 223-204 wins in games three and five, created a 1,007-1,007 tie. In the one-game roll-off concluding the live stream coverage by PBA Xtra Frame on FloBowling, the "Beasts" won, 225-197, to claim the $5,000 first prize.

HAUGEN HOLDS BIG LEAD AS PBA50 PLAYER OF YEAR RACE ENTERS FINAL TWO EVENTS

With the PBA50 Security Federal Savings Bank Championship, presented by Track, in the books, two events remain on the PBA Xtra Frame on FloBowling schedule to decide the 2018 PBA50 Player of the Year race plus 12 berths in a new end-of-season PBA50 Storm Invitational that will be held at Planet Fun Bowling and Entertainment Center in Shallotte, N.C., Sept. 28-30.

The Player of the Year race, based on competition points, concludes with the PBA50 Dave Small's Championship Lanes Classic, presented by Roto Grip, in Anderson, Ind., Aug. 4-7, and the PBA50 Cup, presented by DV8, from Wyoming, Mich., Aug. 9-12. Heading into Anderson, Michael Haugen Jr. continues to lead the race with 25,998 points, more than 6,000 ahead of Kokomo winner Norm Duke (19,734). A PBA50 Tour player can earn a maximum of 5,000 points in a standard event (Anderson, Ind.) and up to 7,500 in a major (Wyoming, Mich.), so Duke would need a big finish and some help in order to overtake Haugen, the 2017 PBA50 Rookie of the Year.

Others in the top 12 in points as of today are Ron Mohr (17,817), Walter Ray Williams Jr. (17,207), Brian Kretzer (16,201), Lennie Boresch Jr. (15,235), Ryan Shafer (14,294), Bob Learn Jr. (12,525), Parker Bohn III (12,093), Amleto Monacelli (11,054), Chris Warren (9,302) and, in 12th place, Pete Weber (9,261). Also in the top 12 hunt are Brian Voss (8,750) and Harry Sullins (8,724).

US JR TEAM GOLD

modified Baker format.

Junior Team USA jumped out to an early lead in the opener, before a missed single pin in the sixth frame and back-to-back splits to end the game, gave the defending champions the advantage and momentum.

After starting the second game with a 7-10 split, the Junior Team USA girls rallied with four consecutive strikes, stole the momentum and never looked back.

The team's roster included Taylor Bailey of Joliet, Illinois, Breanna Clemmer of Clover, South Carolina, Mabel Cummins of Elburn, Illinois, and Caitlyn Johnson of Rockwell, North Carolina. All four competed in the World Youth Championships for the first time.

"After losing the first game, and the way we lost it, I reminded them that in the big picture, it was just one game of Baker," Junior Team USA head coach Bryan O'Keefe said.

The week certainly had its ups and downs for O'Keefe and his team, but regardless of the pin carry they got along the way, or coming up short with silver medals in singles (Johnson) and doubles (Bailey and Clemmer), the team title is the one that always means the most.

The last team title for the Junior Team USA girls came in Bangkok in 2012. That year, the United States swept the team event for the first time in history, and the victory also marked the first of three consecutive wins for the Junior Team USA boys. The boys finished ninth this week at Thunderbowl Lanes.

In 2014, the girls earned a bronze medal in the team event, and they left the 2016 tournament in Lincoln, Nebraska, with silver after being swept by Korea, 2-0.

"Winning feels amazing," said Clemmer, a five-time member of Junior Team USA. "We've been waiting for this for years, and it was our time. We knew that no matter what happened, we were still gold medalists in our hearts, but to come back and win is something we'll never forget."

The United States and Korea both were 2-0 winners Thursday in the semifinals. Korea, the top seed after six games of qualifying, eased past Sweden, 255-212 and 243-216, while the United States downed Malaysia, 189-162 and 224-173.

Qatar's return to the spotlight at the World Youth Championships also was a long time coming, with the country's last team gold medal coming at the inaugural event in 1988.

That tournament, known then as the International Youth Championships, was held in the Philippines, and Qatar's road to the title Thursday also went through the Philippines.

This time, Qatar defeated the Philippines, 2-1, in the semifinals to earn a place in the 2018 final against Finland, a 2-0 winner against top-seeded Japan.

Led by this week's boys all-events gold medalist Ghanim Aboujassoum, Qatar made light work of Finland, claiming the title with a 2-0 sweep by scores of 239-238 and 233-199.

In the opening game of the title match, Finland anchor and all-events bronze medalist, Niko Oksanen, struck on his fill ball to force Aboujassoum to throw three strikes in the final frame for the one-pin victory.

Qatar's only other gold medal prior to the 2018 event came in all-events in 1992.

"We reset this program in 2009 and set a lot of goals, one of which was to win at least one medal at the 2016 World Youth Championships, which we did," said Qatar head coach Pedro Merani. "Now, to be on top of the world is amazing."

Qatar's success at Thunderbowl Lanes means a lot for the future of the program. Aboujassoum's individual success also showed Merani much about his anchor bowler's resilience and strong mental game.

Aboujassoum was frustrated after missing the cut to the singles medal round by one pin, but he maintained his focus and averaged more than 230 for 18 games to win all-events.

Aboujassoum was joined on the lanes by Jassem Al Deyab, Jassim Al Muraikhi and Mohammed Al Merekhi, the singles silver medalist in 2016.

All competitors this week bowled 18 games - six games in singles, doubles and team - and gold, silver and bronze all-events medals were awarded based on 18-game pinfall totals.

The World Youth Championships is held every two years, and the 2018 edition has brought more than 200 competitors from 37 countries to the Detroit area to bowl for medals in singles, doubles, team, all-events and Masters competition.

Zavjalova had missed two spare attempts in the opening five frames of her second match against Jordan Richard, 22, of Tipton, Michigan. After a missed 10-pin spare attempt in the fifth frame, Zavjalova did not miss anything the rest of the match, finishing with seven consecutive strikes in a 226-172 victory.

In the opening match, Zavjalova slipped past Verity Crawley, 24, of England, 185-168, in a match that took some big momentum swings in the final frames. Zavjalova had a 10-pin lead entering the ninth frame, but left the 2-4-10 on her first shot and could not convert.

Crawley, with a chance to clear the deficit, hit the pocket only to leave the 7-10 split. Zavjalova struck on her first shot in the final frame to clinch.

For Zavjalova, winning the title meant going through Crawley in the opening match and Pajak in the title match. The three were teammates at Webber International and travel together on the PWBA Tour.

"We've known each other for a long time and I love the girls more than anything," Zavjalova said. "But it's really tough to bowl against them. I'm happy that I won, but Verity and Daria bowled amazing all week. That's the beauty of the game – it comes down to one game in the finals and it worked in my favor."

The Pepsi PWBA St. Petersburg-Clearwater Open is the first of three elite-field events that will take place in August. Following the U.S. Women's Open, the top 24 players on the PWBA points list earned their way into the elite-field events with the remainder of the 32-player field determined through a pre-tournament qualifier (PTQ).

Players had 16 games of qualifying on Friday before the field was cut to the top 12. Six additional games on Saturday morning determined the five players for the stepladder finals.

NORM DUKE

he left the 4-6-7-10 split. Shafer, whose second-place finish was his career best PBA50 Tour finish, was able to make a run by throwing five consecutive strikes to close the match but Duke through a nine-count on his first ball in the 10th frame to seal the win.

"The main thing for me was to manage the pocket hits," said Duke, who qualified second for the finals. "You had to work to put a string of strikes together because light hits weren't getting it done.

"When you did get on a string you're adjusting on every shot," he added. "It's not like you get lined up and you can stay in one place for a while."

Duke, who won his fifth career PBA50 Tour title, last won on the tour for players 50 and over in the 2017 Race City Open in Mooresville, N.C.

"I've had a lot of second-place finishes," said Duke, a 38-time winner on the PBA Tour. "I knew I would win again but I just didn't know when. I needed this and I'm glad I won it the way I did."

In the semifinal match, Duke beat No. 3 qualifier Brian Kretzer of Dayton, Ohio, 244-226, to advance to the title match. Kretzer' third-place finish was his third top-five of the season.

In the opening match, No. 4 qualifier Dale Csuhta of Wadsworth, Ohio, making his fifth career stepladder finals appearance and trying for his first PBA50 Tour win, defeated No. 5 qualifier two-time PBA50 Tour winner Jack Jurek of Lackawana, N.Y., 236-207.

In the second match Kretzer beat Csuhta, 216-201, to advance to the semifinal match against Duke.

The next stop for the PBA50 Tour will be the PBA50 Dave Small's Championship Lanes Classic presented by Roto Grip Aug. 4-7 in Anderson, Ind.
