New Dragon, Chris Paul patterns added to library of challenges that will test players' skills

CHICAGO (Sept. 25, 2017) – The Professional Bowlers Association has announced plans to introduce a newly-revamped library of 16 different lane oiling patterns for the GoBowling! PBA Tour's 60th anniversary season, creating a wide variety of challenges to test player skills at the highest level.

The lane maintenance program, pioneered by the PBA more than 40 years ago, has been reviewed in depth and modified to take into account current technology, PBA Deputy Commissioner Kirk von Krueger said in announcing the new patterns.

Several of the revised patterns will make their debuts during the GEICO PBA World Series of Bowling IX, presented by Eldorado Reno Properties, in Reno, Nev., Nov. 7-19. WSOB IX is collectively the opening event of the 2017-18 GoBowling! PBA Tour schedule.

"The new library of lane oiling patterns will include eight animal pattern lane conditions and seven 'legends' patterns, three of which will be used as

U.S. Open Direct Qualifiers Introduced, Site Set for 2018

ARLINGTON, Texas - The United States Bowling Congress and the Bowling Proprietors' Association of America will introduce a special direct-qualifier program for the 2018 U.S. Open, which will be held at Northrock Lanes in Wichita, Kansas, the organizations announced Thursday.

The operation of the U.S. Women's Open and U.S. Open is a collaborative effort by USBC and BPAA and jointly funded by the two organizations. The 2018 U.S. Open will take place Oct. 24-31.

The direct-entry program for the 2018 tournament will give 10 BPAA bowling centers across the country the opportunity to host a qualifying event, from which one bowler can earn a spot in the U.S. Open field.

The centers will be able to determine the format, provided it includes at least nine games and is contested on a Sport Bowling-compliant lane condition. Direct qualifiers for the 2018 U.S. Open must be held

The 2017-2018 United States Bowling Congress Collegiate season got underway last weekend with the Bethel men and Morehead State women winning titles at the Green River Classic in Campbellsville, Kentucky.

The Green River Classic was held at Phillips Lanes and featured 10 varsity men's teams and 11 varsity women's teams. The format consisted of five traditional games Saturday and 12 Baker games Sunday with total pinfall determining the winner in each division.

The Bethel men held a small lead after five traditional games, and the Wildcats increased its advantage during Baker competition on its way to a 6,718 pinfall total. Campbellsville finished second with 6,620, and Louisville was third with 6,556.

Campbellsville led the men's individual standings as McKinley Knopp (1,023 for five games) and Austin Montgomery (960) claimed the top two spots. University of the Cumberlands bowlers took the next three spots - Robert Castle (959), Alex Lewis (953) and Adam Thress (950). Union's Jerry Whobrey matched Thress' 950 total to tie for fifth place.

The Morehead State women made their move during Baker competition Sunday. The Eagles used a 233 finish to overcome a 38-pin difference against Union and take the title with a 6,293 total. Union finished second with 6,264, and University of the Cumberlands was third with 6,182.

Anna Etherington of Lindsey Wilson College cruised to the top of the women's individual standings, firing a 1,033 total for her five games, a 206.6 average. Union's Kendall Lane (931) and Julia Edenfield (912)

Just Paying Attention

By Mark London

The marketing of products and services has always been a challenge, but with more and more customer savvy and available information in the digital era, the challenge is different than ever before. This week, we hear again from BPAA Social Media Committee Chair and Sooner Bowling Center GM Mandy Haws.

She gives an overview on how millennials are different, but like other generations before, offer their own unique set of values in addition to those tried and true values of preceding generations.

"They're interesting because while they are highly studied, analyzed, and hypothesized about, I don't think we've seen their potential yet, possibly delayed by factors in and out of their control. They're also interesting because they keep the rest of us (generations) on our toes trying to figure them out. They're going to function in our world a little differently than any other generation. They can be challenging because it's not what the rest of us are used to, so that's a change for (Baby) Boomers on down.

"Many of them are highly responsible, capable, very open and worldly. They value things differently than any other generation. I don't think that's bad, it's just different for the rest of us. Look at hippies, bra burners and Boomers they're running companies now, but still changing things in their own way," said Haws.

Haws added she uses geo-filters of existing social media platforms with her own center's business (Facebook, Twitter, Instagram, and SnapChat). Those allow her to market to a tighter-defined age group than ever before, as we've seen before with bulk mail.

A concept I've discussed before here is the idea each generation has its preferred media choice, or way of getting its information. First, it was the printed word in books, then the audible word in radio, then the seen word in movies and television. These days, television is not the big dog on the block it used to be with this upcoming adult generation.

What today's young consumers are into is their own media. Unlike cable TV and boomboxes of the late 1970's, today's young consumers prefer the one they can hold in their hand, or listen to through ear buds. It's the cell phone, which continue to get more and more complex with each new version.

Now add in different economic decisions being faced by millennials the last few years. As an example, The White Hutchinson Leisure and Learning Group has cited numerous studies are showing millennials are not going out as much, but saving up for a special night out. This trend is also partly due to social media participation in what used to be leisure time. A form of digital togetherness exists on a larger scale in online groups and communities, more so than in traditional social gathering places, like bowling centers, the mall, restaurants, and bars.

So the question goes back to get millennials (and others, too, of course) back into bowling centers with that criteria in mind. As you might have thought, these incredible electronic pieces of technology offer a key to the next wave of marketing, able to pinpoint perspective customers without advertising through existing previous mass media.

This perspective comes from Steve Schroeder, founder and CEO of Smart Community Technologies (SGT), who has a unique plan to increase traffic into centers. According to the company website, SGT offers mobile strategies that can not only drive consumers to your door, but also "eliminate discounting through creative use of value so customers are happier paying full price rather than relying on discounts." He added the rewards would come from a larger group of businesses, not just bowling centers.

By using Geo Fence Texting, a cell phone going into a designated area will be 'tagged' to receive a message offering a special deal. Once a phone is tagged, it is in that business' data base and will receive benefits to other businesses also subscribing to the system. Depending on your location, that could be Starbuck's and Chick-Fil-A, among others. Schroeder has proprietors in Michigan and Ohio already using an older version of this system.

Next week, I'll present more from Schroeder on how this is more than a bowling project, but also how it can impact local economies well.

A British man who recently turned forty, only known to us as 'Rob', blogged about 40 different sporting events he was going to attend as he entered a fifth decade of life. One of those ways was watching the live TV finals of the Weber Cup at the Barnsley Metrodome, in South Yorkshire, England.

If you've been fortunate to attend a live television bowling finals, think about what you felt and thought. What Rob blogs about is what it's like to attend something on this scale for the first time, even wanting to do research on the event and

Like many others, he has bowled before and watched it on television and on YouTube videos. Attending association football (soccer) matches is another sensory experience, but as part of a crowd of 350 (his estimation) inside a much more confined space is another type of sensory experience, feeling much more intimate, especially as players high-fived him as they walked to the interview area

As you can read the rest for yourself here (s40rty.wordpress.com), Rob is amazed at what he sees and hears from his front row seats. Two of the subtle things are the constant hum of the pinsetter (Brunswick GS-90 series) and the sound of the ball returning to the bowler, in his words, "breaking the polite silence as a bowler prepared to take a shot."

The British bowling publication, 'Talk Tenpin', has completed an interview with the blogger. I'll provide a link when they post it.

between Nov. 1, 2017 and May 1, 2018.

The host centers for the direct qualifiers for the 2018 event will be:

- * Lucky Strike Lanes, Malone, N.Y.
- * Thunderbowl Lanes, Allen Park, Mich.
- * Buffaloe Lanes Mebane, Mebane, N.C.
- * Gaudé Lanes Bowling Center, Biloxi, Miss.
- * Sparetime Lanes, Decatur, Ill.
- * May City Bowl, Cedar Rapids, Iowa

Please contact the centers directly for additional information. Two additional centers will be announced at a later date.

"We're looking forward to getting some of our centers involved in the U.S. Open and the new format, which we feel really has added even more prestige to a great event," BPAA President Nancy Schenk said. "Bowlers at the grassroots level from coast to coast will have a chance to join the select field, and we can't wait to see the response to these qualifiers."

The U.S. Open is a premier event for 144 of the best bowlers in the world, and Northrock Lanes already has been the backdrop for many great moments in recent bowling history.

In recent years, the center has been home to the Intercollegiate Team and Intercollegiate Singles Championships and welcomed the Professional Women's Bowling Association Tour. It also is scheduled to host the USBC Women's Championships in 2019.

"Wichita has a great local bowling community that will be excited and very welcoming to the competitors," said United States Bowling Congress President Frank Wilkinson. "As we build on the tradition of the U.S. Open, we're thankful to have Northrock Lanes and the Wichita community continue to play a vital role in professional bowling."

The 2017 U.S. Open, which introduces the new invitation-only format, is set for Oct. 25-Nov. 1 at the 40-lane Flamingo Bowl in Liverpool, New York.

The U.S. Open is revered for its challenging lane conditions and long format that includes 24 games of qualifying, an eight-game cashers' round and 24 games of round-robin match play, before the field is cut to the top five for the traditional stepladder finals.

The invitation-only field brings together the money leaders from the Professional Bowlers Association Tour and the top performers at a variety of USBC and international events, including the World Bowling Tour, Masters, USBC

PBA OIL PATTERNS

major championship patterns, plus the Chris Paul pattern," von Krueger added. "Each pattern has specific characteristics including the distance oil is applied down the lane, how it is applied across the lane and the volume of oil applied to each lane."

Two new named patterns will debut in 2018. The "Dragon" is a 45-foot pattern in the animal pattern library that figures to provide a high level of difficulty for PBA players. And for the first time, the PBA will have an official "house shot" design named in honor of the PBA's long-time celebrity bowling partner, Chris Paul, that is likely to become the PBA's highest-scoring pattern. The library of lane oiling patterns was designed by PBA Head of Lane Maintenance Sean Parry with the assistance of Brunswick, PBA's Official Lane Maintenance partner. The oiling patterns will be used exclusively throughout the GoBowling! PBA Tour, PBA50 Tour and PBA Regional program's 2018 seasons. Illustrations of the 16 revamped oiling patterns along with more detailed information can be found on pba.com under the Lanes and Equipment tab. Each pattern's name will be followed by a number indicating the length of the pattern in feet as it will be applied on a 60-foot lane.

The new Cheetah 33, Chameleon 39, Scorpion 42, Shark 45 and Earl Anthony 42 patterns will debut at the GEICO PBA World Series of Bowling IX presented by Eldorado Reno Properties in Reno in November. The Go Bowling! PBA Tour's 2018 Big February events will feature the Don Johnson 40 pattern at the PBA Tournament of Champions in Akron; the Carmen Salvino 44 at the Barbasol PBA Players Championship in Columbus, Ohio, and the Dick Weber 45 at the Go Bowling! PBA 60th Anniversary Classic in Indianapolis. The Mark Roth 42 will be used for the Roth/Holman PBA Doubles Championship in Columbus and for the PBA League competition in Portland, Maine.

In addition to the new Dragon 45, the oil pattern library also will include the Wolf 33, Viper 36, Bear 39 and Johnny Petraglia 36 patterns. The Badger 52 will be removed temporarily from the rotation. Plans for the use of these patterns will be announced later. "For decades, the PBA lane maintenance program has helped define the greatest players in the sport of bowling," said PBA CEO and Commissioner Tom Clark. "This revised menu of oil patterns and the strategy of their release and implementation is in line with our core values, including integrity, complete transparency and recognizing both challenges and opportunities advanced technology presents. Most of all, we are proud of these diverse conditions that will demand a combination of player skills."

"Along with the distinct characteristics of the bowling centers and lane beds where the PBA conducts competition, these patterns will be a platform for champions while entertaining and educating fans."

In addition to providing physical definitions of oiling patterns, the PBA uses visible blue oil on most telecasts, allowing fans to see the oil pattern and how the pattern changed during competition, providing another layer of education to the sport's challenges.

"The PBA recognizes that every oiling pattern will present a different challenge depending upon the type of lane surface, weather conditions, the viscosity of lane conditioning oil and other factors," von Krueger said. "Every condition is also subject to change due to bowling ball traffic during competition which moves the oil around."

"But defining the physical aspects of each pattern is a valuable tool for players, tournament hosts and fans. Solving those characteristics is the challenge that makes bowling such a great sport."

APPLICATIONS BEING ACCEPTED FOR 2017 TONY REYES COMMUNITY SERVICE AWARD

The PBA is now accepting nominations for the 2017 PBA Tony Reyes Community Service award, named in honor of the late PBA Tour player in recognition of his service to the bowling community. The award recognizes a current PBA member who performs extraordinary community service over the course of a PBA Tour season. To be eligible, the nominee must be a PBA member in good standing.

For a nomination form and additional information click on <http://www.pba.com/Corporate/Awards>. The deadline for submissions is Dec. 18.

Reyes, a popular PBA Tour titlist, died in late September 2012 of injuries sustained in a traffic accident near his home in San Bruno, Calif.

Past winners of the award have been Parker Bohn III of Jackson, N.J., in 2013 for his work primarily with two charitable endeavors he established – the Striking Out Sandy fundraiser and his annual Parker Bohn III Scholarship Tournament; Missy Parkin of Laguna Hills, Calif., in 2014, for her work in organizing the Baby Reesa Foundation fundraiser which supports families with children born with Krabbe Disease; Ed Godbout of Felton, Calif., in 2015, for establishing several charitable initiatives in Reyes' name including the Tony Reyes Memorial Scholarship and the Tony Reyes Memorial Youth/Adult Doubles Tournament, and Rhino Page of Orlando, Fla., in 2016, for his involvement with the Thomas Cacioppo family in New York in raising more than $225,000 to combat the debilitating digestive tract disorders Crohn's and Colitis.

WISEMAN'S SIXTH ANNUAL SCHOLARSHIP TOURNAMENT SET FOR OCT. 7-8

Twelve-time PBA Tour champion Danny Wiseman of Baltimore will conduct his sixth annual Danny Wiseman Youth Scholarship Tournament Oct. 7-8 at AMF Country Lanes in suburban Baltimore.

The tournament, which can accommodate 342 youth bowlers in scratch and handicap divisions, is filling rapidly. For information, visit Wiseman's Facebook page (<https://www.facebook.com/Danny-Wiseman-Bowling-Fan-Page-107752155919763/>) or his website (<http://www.danny-wisemanbowling.com/>).
