Mark Williams, Ricky Schissler Win PBA50 Regional Titles at Junction City Bowl

Mark Williams and Proprietor Joe Ellison

By: Pete McCordic

Junction City, Kan., (Oct. 9, 2018) – PBA Hall of Famer Mark Williams from Beaumont, Texas, and Ricky Schissler of Brighton, Colo., won titles in a pair of joint PBA50 Southwest/Midwest Regional events over the weekend at Junction City Bowl.

On Saturday, Williams defeated Team USA competitor and new PBA member Steve Badovinac of Parker Colo., 224-192, to win his 21st PBA title. Badovinac started the championship match strong with four strikes, but two late open frames allowed a late charge by Williams to win the match and the $1,200 first place check.

On Sunday, Schissler, who won the same event in 2017 for his first PBA title, won six of his seven matches in the eight-game round robin match play finals to build a comfortable 122-pin lead over qualifying leader Keith Lesko from Prosper, Texas. Schissler's 188-183 win over Lesko in the final position round match allowed Williams to advance to second. Schissler finished Wish I had more to report on the USBC Open Championships location for 2022 story, but here's what I can tell you. There still are other multiple sites and local associations under consideration to be the host city, one of which is Houston. That was confirmed in JPA earlier this year.

One unknown entity is the building. The one I have proposed that may be available after upcoming renovation is the one and only NRG Astrodome. There's a chance you haven't seen the interior in a while, or at least when it was last opened to the public three years ago, when the 50th anniversary of its opening was celebrated.

As seen in the Houston Chronicle several weeks ago, a drone bearing a camera was launched inside the Dome, showing the progress of the ongoing cleaning and moving of materials. Those items on the current stadium floor need to be moved to prepare the installation of two levels of parking. That will raise the new stadium floor to street level, allowing more room for the public gatherings and conventions planned.

Collegiate Ticker

USBC COLLEGIATE

By: Aaron Smith

ARLINGTON, TX - The Lindenwood women and McKendree men, the winners at last year's season-ending Intercollegiate Team Championships, were victorious at the recent 48th Annual Midwest Collegiate Championships, claiming the first Tier 1 titles of the 2018-2019 United States Bowling Congress Collegiate season.

The event was held last weekend at Bowlero in Wauwatosa, Wisconsin, and featured 40 men's teams and 32 women's teams. The format included six traditional games Saturday and 16 Baker games Sunday, with total pinfall determining the winner in each division.

The Lindenwood women easily outdistanced the field at Bowlero as the Lions recorded a wire-to-wire victory, finishing with an 8,927 total. St. Ambrose, the 2017 Midwest Collegiate winner, finished in second place with 8,640, and Robert Morris-Illinois was third with 8,529.

Along with the team victory, a pair of Lindenwood teammates finished at the top of the individual standings. Serenity Quintero led the field with a six-game total of 1,275, a 212.5 average, and was followed by Haley Cummings with 1,243. Savannah College of Art and Design-Savannah's Rebekah Commane was third with 1,241, while Webber International's Caitlyn Johnson (1,222) and Grand View's Hanna Duver (1,221) rounded out the top five.

On the men's side, McKendree finished Saturday's traditional block with a 1,147 game to put itself ahead by more than 130 pins, and the Bearcats continued strong Sunday in Baker competition to grab the top spot with 9,941. St. Ambrose made a huge run during Baker competition, averaging more than 227, to finish in second with 9,794, while Lincoln Memorial was third with 9,771.

Robert Morris-Illinois' Michael Martell fired 238 in his final game Saturday to solidify his spot at the top of the individual standings. The left-hander finished with a 1,416 total, a 236 average. Vincennes' Tyler Perry was second with 1,390, and McKendree's Andrew Lazarchick was third with 1,383. Lincoln Memorial's Jorge Rodriguez (1,362) and Newman's Jake Provenzano (1,360) also earned spots on the all-tournament team.

In other USBC Collegiate action over the weekend:

- At the Louisville Collegiate Classic in Jeffersontown, Kentucky, the Pikeville men and Martin Methodist women each edged out victories.

- At the Thomas Burris Memorial Classic in Louisville, Kentucky, the Martin Methodist women completed their sweep in Kentucky, while Northwestern Ohio claimed the win in the men's division.

- At the Wolverine-Hoosier Athletic Conference No. 1 in Sterling Heights, Michigan,

The new parking area will certainly come in handy for not only the annual Houston Livestock and Rodeo Show in March (known to the locals as simply 'Rodeo'), but many other events next door at NRG Stadium, like Houston Texans football, college and high school football bowl games, NCAA basketball games, and possibly, just maybe, again just maybe, for five months of bowling in 2022.

According to the Chronicle in its September 27 edition, the next phase of the renovation starts after final asbestos removal, which began last week. That will last for the rest of the year, concluding just before the annual Rodeo in March, when work will pause until April. (If you've been to Rodeo or driven by the Dome and NRG Stadium on the I-610 South Loop, you'll know why. It's a little busy around there). The projected finish date at this point is February 2020 with a more detailed schedule to be known this week.

Here's a link to the Chronicle article and the drone view of the Astrodome main floor from this past April. (www.chron.com/news/houston-texas/housotn/srticle/Astrodome-redevelopment-should-begin-after-13260820.php#photo-4809919)

The USBC would love to make a statement about what kind of building they would hold their premier event in, and to have in the world's first domed stadium would be very exciting. With that being said, there are other bids being considered and all we can do is wait and see. Stay tuned.

In case you missed it, a new feature in how Fox Network and FS1 plan on presenting their PBA telecasts was revealed in an October 8 'The Kegel Show' video podcast on its Facebook page with host Don Agent. Now, don't get bent out of shape looking at the twenty-five minute length, but there is a lot of brand new information discussed by Agent and his guest, PBA Commissioner Tom Clark. Addressing an on-camera graphic I've been asking about for some time, Kegel's Specto ball tracking system will be used on Fox and FS1 telecasts to illustrate ball motion properties, like RPM's, MPH's and location in a given spot on its path down the lane.

At about the 6:00 mark, the discussion moves to Specto and the graphics start popping up illustrating for those who haven't seen the next generation of ball tracking yet. He further explains Fox Sports likes to "Foxify" it presentation of sports, advancing it to the next level, the best illustration being constant on-screen game information with NFL games starting in 1994.

Watching still images of prior telecasts with superimposed Specto graphics, you can

FloBowling Brings Fans Personality Insights, Podcasts and More

By: Bill Vint

As the 2018 Go Bowling! PBA Tour heads down the home stretch, and attention turns to next week's FloBowling PBA Fall Swing at The Lanes at Coffee Creek in suburban Tulsa, Okla., PBA fans are learning more and more about PBA players, tournaments, viewpoints and more through PBA's new partnership with FloSports and its dedicated PBA network, FloBowling.

In addition to its exclusive live-streaming coverage of specific events on PBA Xtra Frame on FloBowling, PBA's new online partner has recently produced podcasts with PBA Tour champion Tom Daugherty, video tips with Bob Learn Jr., stories about the unconventional two-handed style of Tim Cagle II, a preview of the Fall Swing oil patterns with Josh Blanchard, a guest column by PBA CEO-Commissioner Tom Clark re: his phone calls to PBA's newly-elected hall of famers, and, most recently, a pointed commentary by Australia's Jason Belmonte who told his "two-handed haters" he could still beat most them bowling with one hand.

A growing library of articles and podcasts are available to PBA fans at no cost simply by visiting https://www.flobowling.com/, where all content is free unless it is designated as "PRO" content.

In addition to following the PBA Tour on pba.com, Facebook, Twitter and Instagram, fans also can follow FloBowling on those same platforms (example: : https://www.facebook.com/FloBowling/)... and then they can round out a complete PBA package by subscribing to FloBowling, where they'll be able to watch exclusive live coverage of the FloBowling PBA Fall Swing, including the Wolf, Bear and Tulsa Open events, Oct. 15-20.

The 2018 PBA Tour season then concludes with the U.S. Open at Northrock Lanes in Wichita, Kan. The preliminary rounds of the U.S. Open also will be live-streamed by Xtra Frame on FloBowling, Oct. 26-30, before the finals air live on CBS Sports Network on Oct. 31.

see how much more detail is used, having a 2018 look we see in every major sport on television. The graphics will show the techy numbers, even more than what we used to see on the Brunswick BowlerVision software graphics ESPN used in the late 1980's and the CATS system occasionally used in the early 2000's. That software showed ball position and ball speed at 15', 30', 45', and 60' on both lanes of the television pair. Take those figures, add in location at the breakpoint, rev rates, ball speed, then add lines tracing every strike ball down the lane, and that's a bit what Kegel's Specto promises to show viewers. Can't wait to see this and hopefully Fox plans to use this on their first PBA telecast following NFL football on Sunday December 23.

This may be the first step in displacing what I have named my 'Grandma In Galesburg' theory. In this era of 'thirst for more technical knowledge', and the graphic displays being shown on sports telecasts, the PBA is now able to show detailed information many upper end bowlers have known for years, but haven't had a common visual source as a database.

In the second half of the podcast, Clark tells how the PBA got the late Sunday spot on Fox, the format of the show, and what else we will see on the telecast. Plus, there is also a story of how a longtime Yankee fan turned into a Red Sox fan.

###########

Next week, a little rundown as what 'Foxifying' the PBA just might look like, besides hearing 'Hambone' several times a show.

...And They Can Play Golf Pretty Well, Too...

By: Bill Vint

Contributing editor Cliff Schrock, writing for Golf Digest, does an annual report on high-quality golfers among athletes who star in other sports, including the NFL, NBA, MLB, etc. This year's list, released Tuesday on golfdigest.com, includes four PBA players who also excel on the links along with their unofficial golf handicaps. Schrock's list includes:

-EJ Tackett: a 2 handicapper lists his home course as Orchard Ridge Country Club in Indiana.

-Ronnie Russell: plays to a 3.2 handicap; calls Meshingomesia Golf Club in Indiana home.

-Tommy Jones: the 2005-06 PBA Player of the Year is a 5 handicap golfer; his home course is Holly Tree Country Club in South Carolina.

-Pete Weber: the 37-time PBA Tour titlist is a 9 handicap golfer; his home course is Bogey Hills Country Club in the St. Louis area.

Also worth noting are a couple of other well-known athletes with PBA ties:

-Boston Red Sox star Mookie Betts regularly shoots in the 80-85 range in posting a 12 handicap; he is known to frequent Talis Park G.C. in Florida and the Nashville Golf and Athletic Club near his Tennessee home.

-Houston Rockets star Chris Paul, host of the annual CP3 PBA Invitational, has improved from a 20 to a 13.7 handicap in golf over the past couple of years. He led an NBA team of eight stars in the State Farm Showdown last summer at Mohegan Sun Golf Club in Connecticut.
