By: Matt Cannizarro

ARLINGTON, Texas - The Team USA men are on their way to the 2018 World Bowling Men's Championships, where they are the defending champions in the coveted five-player team event and in doubles.

The two players who were part of both winning efforts - 16-time team member Chris Barnes of Double Oak, Texas, and 11-time team member Tommy Jones of Simpsonville, South Carolina - will lead Team USA's six-competitor contingent into Hong Kong's South China Athletic Centre and look to add to the success they've had together at the World Championships.

The event kicks off with official practice and an opening ceremony Nov. 24, and singles competition will get underway the following morning. Bowlers from 50 countries will compete for medals in singles, doubles, trios, team, all-events and Masters competition, before the tournament concludes Dec. 5.

Just Paying Attention

By Mark London
Mark@TheBowlingNews.net

Last week, I mentioned the next chapter in the evolution of the USBC Open Championships could very well be upon us. For the first time since its beginning over a century ago, the tournament could be held in existing bowling centers rather than large convention centers. In an email survey sent to past OC participants two weeks ago, only one multiple choice question was asked and it was about the venue.

Responders were asked to choose their preference of three options, that the OC be held in existing bowling centers, continue to hold the OC exclusively in arena venues, or if the venue is not important.

As you've read here before, with more and more trade conventions these days, the business model has changed. There are fewer convention centers meeting the required space and time needs of the OC tournament site. So it should be no surprise this option is being considered for the future of the tournament.

For a number of years, the Women's Championships, and before that, a.k.a. the WIBC Tournament, has been held in two different centers (when not at the National Bowling Stadium or at South Point in Las Vegas, for example) in a host city. One center hosts the team event, the second hosts doubles and singles.

Even if the 2019 OC at South Point exceeds expectations of 11,000 teams after 7,556 teams bowled in Syracuse, this option may be on the table down the road. Who knows, it could be as early as the yet-to-be-determined 2022 site.

All we know about 2022 at this point is there are several sites being considered with Houston being one of them. A site has not yet been proposed from what I've heard, although I've spent several columns explaining why the historic Astrodome would be a fantastic choice if remodeling is completed and the space available for that time span.

The tentatively date is set for a February 2020 completion, as Harris County Sports and Convention Corporation Executive Director, Ryan Walsh told the Houston Chronicle in an September 27 article. HCSCC is the governmental agency of Harris County directly running the NRG Park complex, which includes NRG Stadium, NRG Arena, and the NRG Astrodome.

Once again, nothing else has been confirmed to me where we are bowling the 2022 OC. If it is in H-Town, it would be a new city, a new venue, plus we know the Greater Houston USBC would help put on a great show as the host association.

Also, the overseeing governmental agency, Harris County Houston Sports Association (HCHSA) who operates all the major sporting venues in town, has decades of experience booking and administrating events.

Just in the last three years, they have hosted a World Series, a Super Bowl, a NCAA Men's Final Four, an annual college bowl game at NRG Stadium, and also begun bidding for the 2026 FIFA World Cup. No disrespect intended against other cities' planning organizations, but that alone is a pretty good track record. HCHSA can handle just about anything.

How much has the model changed? As an example for a number of years, participants were issued gate passes to bowl each of their events. Otherwise, a bowler attending the tourney site before or after his events, even at a different time on the day of his event was charged regular admission fee. Yes, one had to buy a ticket to get inside.

Business models have changed since those days thirty-five years ago. But could the future of the OC tournament exist inside existing bowling centers? It is being considered.

Stay tuned.

And now, a story of thanks on Thanksgiving week around that classic phrase, it's not just the destination, it's about the journey.

Over thirty years ago, a young bowler missed the finals of a PBA regional event by less than ten pins, becoming the match-play alternate, the first of several times in that role. He knew the membership rule, you know, the one where

USBC Fully Unified with New Season Underway

By: Aaron Smith

ARLINGTON, Texas – The effort to unify services provided by the United States Bowling Congress at the local and state levels, set in place by delegates at the 2016 USBC Convention and Annual Meeting, now is completed.

The goal to create a single organization to govern and service the sport of bowling goes back nearly 20 years with the merger of the American Bowling Congress (ABC), Women's International Bowling Congress (WIBC), Young American Bowling Alliance (YABA) and USA Bowling on Jan. 1, 2005 to form the USBC.

Combining the forces of the leading bowling organizations stemmed from the idea to provide a better experience for each member and create uniformity in programs and services. It marked the largest nonprofit association merger at the time.

"We have worked toward this goal for so many years, and it truly is a special moment for the organization and the future of the sport," USBC President Karl Kielich said. "The member experience will continue to improve as local and state associations now are unified under the same vision, and we're thankful to our association leaders for putting in the time and effort to complete this goal."

At the 2016 USBC Convention and Annual Meeting, delegates approved a member-submitted amendment to its bylaws requiring non-merged local and non-merged state associations to become a single organization to service its bowlers, setting a date of Aug. 1, 2018, for all mergers to be completed.

More than 1,200 associations remained unmerged at the time, and the USBC Association Services and Development team closely worked with non-merged bowling (BA), women's bowling (WBA) and youth associations to provide the services and resources needed to complete the two-year process and be ready for the start of the 2018-2019 season.

While the final associations to merge began to serve as a single entity starting Aug. 1, several still had steps to take as they concluded their summer leagues. After each association was able to submit and update their databases,

The lone exception for tickets is the USBC Masters, which offers free admission.

The 2019 Go Bowling! PBA Tour season begins with the PBA Hall of Fame Classic from the International Training and Research Center in Arlington, Texas, and continues through the PBA League Elias Cup Finals at Bayside Bowl in Portland, Maine, including stops in Shawnee, Okla.; Lubbock and Conroe, Texas; Fairlawn and Columbus, Ohio; Indianapolis; Jonesboro, Ark.; Allen Park, Mich., and Las Vegas along the way. Every event will include at least one television event on FOX or FS1.

BOWLING SALUTES BOSTON RED SOX STAR MOOKIE BETTS' HISTORIC YEAR

On Nov. 10, Anthony Means, a writer for Cut4 by MLB.com, noted that Boston Red Sox outfielder Mookie Betts was the first athlete to participate in both the PBA World Series of Bowling (where he earned a PBA 300 game ring) and the Major League Baseball World Series. That was just the beginning for one of the sports world's most talented individuals.

On Thursday, Betts was named American League MVP, capping an unprecedented year in which he won a Golden Glove, was named American League Defensive Player of the Year, won a Silver Slugger award for his offensive prowess, won the American League batting title and helped the Red Sox win baseball's world series. No player in MLB history had ever accomplished that sweep.

But maybe Bett's proudest accomplishment arrived on Nov. 6 when he and fiancée Brianna welcomed the arrival of their first child, daughter Kinley.

won his first career NHRA Mello Yello Drag Racing Series Funny Car World Championship title Sunday at the Auto Club NHRA Finals at Auto Club Raceway at Pomona, Calif.

Todd won the title by defeating Tommy Johnson in the finals with a 3.872 seconds elapsed time at 329.1 mph, notching his sixth win of the season in the process.

Todd and fellow NHRA drivers Shawn Langdon and Richie Crampton took time out from their busy schedules to bowl with 12-time PBA Tour champion Sean Rash at Parkside Lanes in Aurora, Ill., in June. Todd showed his prowess on the lanes by posting games of 217 and 220 during an informal match between the three drivers and Rash.

PBA will join NHRA as part of the FOX Sports family of beginning with the PBA Clash telecast on Dec. 23 leading into the 2019 Go Bowling! PBA Tour season in January.

QUICK NOTES:

-In an all-PBA final, Australia's Sam Cooley defeated PBA Player of the Year candidate Kyle Troup of Taylorsville, N.C., 244-163, to win the 54th Qubica AMF Bowling World Cup Saturday at Sam's Town in Las Vegas. Troup defeated Colombia's Andres Gomez, 264-216, and Cooley eliminated Finland's Osku Palermaa, 240-203, to set up the title match. PBWA Player of the Year Shannon O'Keefe, a PBA Regional title winner, won the women's World Cup with a 238-236 thriller over Malaysia's Sin Li Jane.

-Three-time PBA Tour champion Bill Tucker of Gilbert, Ariz., has died at the age of 92. A USBC Hall of Famer, Tucker was the first bowler to roll two 300 games in ABC/USBC Open Championships history. Among his most impressive victories was in the 100-game BPAA All Star in 1961 when he out-distanced Dick Weber by 363 pins for the title. A U.S. Army veteran who served during WWII, Tucker worked in his Arizona pro shop until his retirement at the age of 91.

TEAM USA MEN

All six players recently wrapped up successful seasons on the Professional Bowlers Association Tour, and Troup is fresh off a runner-up finish at the 2018 QubicaAMF Bowling World Cup in his Team USA debut.

"Probably more so this year, with such an incredibly talented group, I knew I needed to come in and have a good training camp, if I was going to get selected for the World Championships," said Barnes, who has earned 15 medals in World Championships competition and an additional gold medal at the World Singles Championships. "It was an honor to get picked and get to play in the World Championships again. I've had a few chances at these now, and I understand how special they are, especially at this stage in my career."

On the way to becoming two of the most decorated players in the Team USA history, Barnes and Jones have been staples at the World Championships since 2008, when professionals first were allowed to compete.

They'll now share the stage together for the sixth consecutive time. In their five previous visits, they've collected 25 medals. Their success includes helping the United States to three team titles (2008, 2010 and 2017), while also striking gold in doubles in 2017 in their first time as partners at the event.

"Our expectation each time we put on the red, white and blue is to win," said Jones, who has won 10 medals at the World Championships and an additional silver medal in World Singles Championships competition. "If we do our jobs to the best of our ability, we should have another successful year. The feeling you get from standing on that podium and hearing the national anthem is hard to put into words."

Hong Kong already is a special place for Jones, as that's where he was when he put on a Team USA shirt for the first time.

At the 1996 World Bowling Youth Championships, he rolled the first perfect game in tournament history and went on to collect three medals. The experience helped shape him as a competitor and teammate, and he still holds onto the things he learned that year from Mike Mullin, Jeremy Sonnenfeld and Robert Smith.

Jones will have the opportunity to pay that forward in Hong Kong this year.

"Team bowling is so different, and there's nothing like bowling for your country," Jones said. "That year, and those guys, taught me how special it was because it's something you're doing together."

Butturff was on the receiving end of some of that wisdom last year as he joined Jones and Barnes for Team USA's fourth team gold medal in its last six opportunities. The memorable win came just after Butturff, a first-time team member, had captured the 2017 QubicaAMF World Cup title.

The momentum of his successful week at the World Cup added confidence, but he also knew the team environment would be quite a bit different.

The young left-hander admits to feeling some nerves heading into the 2017 World Championships because of the magnitude of the event and getting to represent the United States with hall-of-fame-caliber teammates.

The chance to now return to the tournament as a defending champion comes with a completely different set of feelings and some advice of his own for the three World Championships first-timers.

"There definitely were nerves last year, even with it being in Las Vegas and with us being the host country," Butturff said. "I think I overanalyzed it all, and it ended up being a little bit of a struggle, but that has pushed me to want to do much better this time. It's just about making the best shots you can and not forgetting to enjoy the journey. It takes a lot of work to get there, so enjoy the whole experience."

Barnes' perspective on bowling and the World Championships, as well as his role on the team, is much different than when he competed in the event for the first time in 1995, and he'll now get to share his decades of experience with three players seeing the tournament for the first time.

"Everybody experiences things in their own ways, but I'd certainly be happy to offer anything I can from my own experiences to help shorten the path to being completely comfortable on this stage," Barnes added. "We had some of that last year, but the guys stepped up and performed at a world-championship level to take home the gold medal. Ultimately, even the younger players have excelled at many big events, so they've shown they can perform regardless of the environment or pressure."

The 2017 World Championships was a combined event - men and women - something that happens every four years. The last World Men's Championships took place in Abu Dhabi, United Arab Emirates, in 2014. Team USA left that event without a gold medal.

All qualifying rounds at the 2018 World Men's Championships will be livestreamed by World Bowling, while all medal rounds will be broadcast to the United States and Canada by FloBowling. A FloBowling subscription will be required to watch the medal rounds.

USBC UNIFIED

their volunteers worked with USBC to install new association software and make any necessary updates. In all, 259 newly merged associations now are fully operational.

With the merger complete, USBC members now are serviced by 1,638 state and local associations. In 2005, there were nearly 5,500 entities split between BA, WBA and youth associations.

Processing memberships and bowler information, including tournament and league scores, managing and operating annual tournaments, and promoting the sport through their website and association newsletters are just some of the services provided by local associations every season.

"So many great volunteers dedicate their time to provide opportunities to the bowlers at the local and state levels," USBC Director of Associations and Membership Operations Mike Larsen said. "The merging of previously separated associations allows for stronger knowledge and service to the members, from lane inspections and the operating of tournaments to recognition programs and awarding scholarships. Combining the resources in areas previously fragmented will allow for improved services to USBC members."

USBC will continue to highlight the completed merger and membership benefits in the upcoming months, including a celebration at the 2019 USBC Convention and Annual Meeting in Las Vegas at The Orleans from April 29-May 2.

you had to cash twice before applying for membership? Later encountering a small group talking with the regional director, he asked the director if the two-cash rule was still in effect. The director said it was, but then offered a comment to a question he could see coming that would confirm something the bowler already knew.

The director offered an honest opinion to the rookie player. The advice was not to join just yet, as there were some holes in his game, plus he needed some more serious tournament experience.

Some may have taken that statement a different way, but deep down, the rookie knew he was right. The player took the advice as blueprint to work, work, and work some more over the next few years.

At a recent PBA50 Midwest Regional, Rich Weber told me of his pending retirement at the end of the year, I reminded and thanked him for the advice to that rookie player, me, he offered three decades ago. He didn't remember that conversation, but did recall a brief exchange many years later, about 50 feet from the spot of the conversation of the moment.

As I walked off the approach after the final game of a regional many years after hearing the fateful advice, he smiled in a way I had never seen before. Rich said he would email the order form for my PBA champion's banner before he left the center.

He helped other regional players over the years, smart ones soaking up the knowledge, especially knowing who he learned from (Dick) and the one he coached, (Pete).

Rich also caught me up on what I had missed since my move to Texas, his retirement plans, and the latest with his family. Before he left, I shook his hand and said it was an honor to bowl in his tournaments, then thanked him again for telling me there were some holes in my game.

Starting in January for the first time in over thirty years, there will not be a Weber running a PBA Midwest Regional tournament. In order after Don McClaren, it was Dick, Rich, John, then Rich again.

John Weber will still be chief Regional and PBA50 Director.

As we were known to say, using the unique Midwest Region voice inflection, Thanks Rich!

############

Finally this week, after a stop in the 'Burgh, as in Pittsburgh, on my way to Syracuse for the OC in June, my Dad showed me something I had forgotten about. It was a personally signed piece of Spiderman comic strip art by the one and only Stan Lee.

I had to bring him up to speed on the legacy he left on the younger ComicCon generation, the movie franchises, and the ultimate compliment to some, playing himself on the television sitcom "Big Bang Theory."

Having met a few 'names' at the annual Newspaper Publishers Association and other places, he did remember Lee was kind and mentioned each time they met at the convention he was thankful for each paper carrying his-then daily strip in papers literally all over everywhere.

Despite what others in Lee's industry circle said about him, Dad said Lee was one of those he enjoyed catching up with every year. He wasn't full of himself and wanted to hear others stories more than telling his own.

PBA TO UNVEIL

Among the Player of the Year candidates who qualified by finishing among the top 10 in either PBA earnings or competition points, Anderson, Barrett and Tackett are the three leading vote-getters, in alphabetical order. Among the three, Tackett is the only previous Player of the Year winner, capturing the honor for the 2016 season.

-Anderson, 23, won his first two Go Bowling! PBA Tour titles in 2018 including his first major, the USBC Masters. The second-year PBA member also won the 2018 Harry Smith Points Leader Award, symbolic of the tour's most consistent player. He also finished third in the PBA Tournament of Champions, and ranked among the top five in earnings and scoring average.

-Barrett, 33, won the 2018 U.S. Open for his second career major and also won the DHC PBA Japan Invitational. He had top 10 finishes in all three key statistical categories: points (10th), average (seventh) and earnings (second).

-Tackett, 26, was the PBA Tour's only three-title winner in 2018 and had two other top-five finishes, including fourth place in the U.S. Open. He ranked among the tour leaders in competition points (third), earnings (fifth) and average (sixth).
