Upcoming PBA Regional Tour RPI Events

Spots Available to Compete in PBA Regional Players Invitational Qualifier Events

By: JLAUFER

New York, NY – Competition for spots in the PBA Regional Players Invitational (RPI) continues as players acquire points throughout the 2021 PBA Regional Tour season.

Since January 1, players have been competing in open field regional events and have until December 5 to earn points to qualify for the special event. The top eight players in points from the South, East, Midwest, West, Central and Southwest, plus the top six players from the Northwest will automatically earn a spot.

In addition to the top 54 regional players, 26 senior bowlers will also earn spots in the RPI, including the top four seniors in points from the South, East, Midwest, West, Central, and Southwest, and the top two seniors from the Northwest.

To complete the 120-member field, each region will hold a special RPI Tournament Qualifier to fill the remaining 40 spots. The South Region held its PBA50 qualifier in July; Darryl Bower of Middletown, Pa. and Marty Berke of Allentown, Pa. finished first and second to qualify for the RPI.

The remaining RPI Tournament Qualifiers are open for registration. Players can sign up at www.pba.com/pba-tour/pba-regional-tour.

Just Paying Attention

By Mark London

In sports, branding in a marketing sense was for promoting team support, and in a way a much more recent phenomenon. Once individual star athletes emerged starting with the days of Babe Ruth one hundred years ago, companies would ask these very recognizable players to endorse its products plus help the athlete make a few extra dollars. Once the initial ad campaign was successful, this led to more endorsement opportunities from other companies, increasing the athlete's visibility and personal brand.

Once television became the primary mass media in the 1960's, one could more closely identify with the on-field persona of athletes, potentially

ARLINGTON, TX – The 2021-2022 United States Bowling Congress Collegiate season got underway last weekend, with the Madonna women and Bowling Green State men starting the year with wins at the RU Warrior Fall Classic in Troy, Michigan.

The event featured nine women's varsity teams and 10 men's varsity programs. Teams bowled four traditional games and 16 Baker games, with total pinfall determining the winner in each division.

In the women's division, Madonna held a 26-pin lead over Concordia after the traditional block but put together a 315-pin victory based on the strength of its Baker block, rolling to the top spot with a 6,537 total.

Concordia held on to second place with 6,222, while Spring Arbor moved up two spots during Baker competition to take third with 6,193.

Madonna's Emily Gurin was the only student-athlete in the women's field to average more than 200 during the four-game traditional block, posting an 835 total (208.75 average) to earn top individual honors.

Gurin was followed in the individual standings by Concordia's Shannon Geiger (772), Spring Arbor's Montana Hernandez (765), Concordia's Isabell Cooley (759) and Rochester's Sarah Lyerla (729).

Bowling Green State ascended to the top of the men's standings during its Baker block, making up a 90-pin deficit to Aquinas after four traditional games. The Falcons averaged more than 194 during Baker competition to claim the top spot with a 6,977 total.

Concordia charged into second place with 6,949, and Aquinas finished in third with 6,815.

In the men's individual standings, Michigan-Dearborn's Stephen Strzalkowski rolled

There's Always Hope In The Midst Of Tragedy

As I was catching up on some past issues of TheBowlingNews.net out of Dallas/Ft. Worth, an article by Mark London caught my eye in his "Just Paying Attention" column. "The 1991 PBA Winter Tour swing had some odd and unique moments never seen before or since," wrote London. There was John Mazza picking up the 7-10 split, a feat that has proven to be much more rare than rolling a perfect game on television; and there was also Del Ballard's infamous gutter ball at the Fair Lanes Open, handing Pete Weber the title on bowler. It was a bizarre moment in my life, marked by the intense irrational behavior of some, but an almost unbelievable calm by the majority in attendance.

As I continued reading London's column, I thought back to times in my bowling life when I had been in the midst of a tragic event. The first was while stationed in the Pacific Northwest and working for AMF Bowling Centers in sales and promotion for their locations along Interstate 5 in Washington and Oregon. It was in May of 1980 when Mt. St. Helens literally blew its top, and spewed rock and ash

John Biedebach and Jacob Box shared the high-series contest last week at JB's Allen Bowl by hammering out hefty 757. Biedebach fired games of 236-279-242 in Friday 4 Play action while Box downed games of 257-267-233 for an Allen TNT series.

Beth Campbell captured the top spot on the honor roll for the ladies with a powerful 216-245-that covered the entire area for weeks.

Everything came to a screeching halt, as driving was virtually impossible due to the darkness and ash that wreaked havoc with vehicle engines. When it rained, as it often does in that part of the country, the drops were like pellets of mud, which further exacerbated the strain on vehicular travel. It was eerily similar to the COVID-19 scare, except that no mandate to shut down was necessary.

Unlike the Mt. St. Helens eruption, which had been sending warning signals for about a month prior to the major eruption, the bomb scare at Riviera Lanes was announced just minutes before the television broadcast. What we learned later from ABC announcer Chris and looking forward to getting home to watch the third game of the World Series between the San Francisco Giants and the Oakland Athletics, Comptroller Charlie Helton stuck his head in my office and said there had been a severe earthquake in the San Francisco Bay Area.

Because earthquakes are just a way of life in California, like hurricanes on the east coast or tornadoes in the heartland, we really didn't think much about it and closed up shop. When I got home and turned on the television to watch the World Series, I realized that this was not your average earthquake.

One of the first things that we did from a public relations standpoint was to arrange a fundraiser at all of the American Recreation Centers in California and Texas. We called it "The Bay Area Earthquake Relief Bowlathon." We dedicated a four-hour period at the centers, and all of the bowling receipts were donated to the American Red Cross. Including personal contributions, we raised more than $25,000 for the earthquake relief efforts.

Many years later, an event that would forever change my life occurred while I was working for Nationwide Bowling Corporation in the New York Metropolitan Area. It was a beautiful summer day in September as I was making my 25-mile commute from Edison, New Jersey, towards our corporate headquarters in Jersey City. Suddenly, and without warning, there was a swarm of unmarked cars with sequential infrared lights on their dashboard, passing on both the left and right shoulders of the road.

I remember thinking to myself that there must be a gigantic traffic accident ahead, and I tuned in the radio as I approached the turn for New York City onto the Casiano Memorial Bridge. That's when I noticed smoke coming from the World Trade Center, as the radio announcer proclaimed that a plane had hit the north tower. Traffic came to a virtual stop, except for the occasional swarm of unmarked cars that continued to travel on the shoulders at high speed.

As I slowly moved toward New York City, the Casiano Bridge eerily pointed my car directly at the twin towers. When I was near the top of the steel arch bridge, a flash of light caught my eye as word came across the radio waves that the second tower had been hit by a different plane. That's when I realized that the world had forever changed.

The next day we made plans for an event to benefit the American Red Cross. I pulled out the game plan that we had used 12 years earlier in California and Texas, in announcing a "Strike Out Terrorism" fundraiser. Although we originally announced that one-half of the proceeds from our four-hour promotion were to be donated to the Red Cross, the owner of Nationwide Bowling Corporation did ultimately donate all of the thousands of dollars that were generated.

I often wonder why I've moved so many times in my life, and why those moves have been associated with such catastrophic events as earthquakes, volcanic eruptions and acts of terrorism. Whenever I would call my Mom after one of these events, with anxiety in my voice, she would always reply by saying, "Never worry, for God is in control."

The heart of man develops his way,

But the Lord directs his steps.

-Proverbs 16:9

respectively), while the other two team members each bowl two frames (3-7 and 4-8).

Team rosters can feature up to six players, giving each coach the opportunity to bring in substitutes during competition.

USA Bowling Regional tournaments started in 2013, building the foundation of what would lead to the inaugural USA Bowling National Championships in 2016. The national event grew from the USA Bowling program, designed as a team-based youth program to introduce the sport to children.
